

POETRY

AUGURY

Dale Mosher

I emptied wretched memories
yet they linger like husked voices, echoes swirling in eddies dark minnows brushing my ankles mud squished between toes.

Entrails divined as truth disturb the opaque future spawning in shallow pools.

I might cast barbed hooks
then leave them, unreeled.